The Hereditary Estate
Daniel Coburn

Filter Photo is pleased to showcase The Hereditary Estate an exhibition of works by photographer Daniel W. Coburn at Filter Space. Coburn, an Assistant Professor of Photo Media at the University of Kansas, uses photography to document the true and sometimes troubling nature of domestic life. His family history is haunted by instances of suicide, domestic violence, mental illness and substance abuse. The Hereditary Estate functions as a potent and more accurate amendment to the idealized family album assembled by his parents. Coburn says, "I photograph my family in parables of love, respect, and quiet tragedy."

Daniel W. Coburn's first major artist's book, The Hereditary Estate, was published by Kehrer-Verlag in May of 2015. His photographic works have been exhibited and published internationally, recently appearing on Page Two of the International New York Times (Europe and Asia.) The artist will be present at a public reception for The Hereditary Estate at Filter Space on Friday January 8th from 6-9pm.
Filter Photo is proud to acknowledge the support of the David C. & Sarajeann Ruttenberg Arts Foundation in producing this exhibition.

The Hereditary Estate
Daniel Coburn
January 8th - February 26th, 2015
Opening Reception: Friday, January 8th

Filter Space
1821 West Hubbard Street, Suite 207, Chicago, IL 60622
Monday – Saturday, 11am - 5pm

More images available upon request via Rachel Jump at rachel@filterfestival.com